The MFCG is 5km and 2km from Sukhbaatar Square and Marshall Bridge respectively on the bike track in the National Garden of UB. If you're coming in a taxi you can ask for "ikh khuree" or "undesni tsetserlegt hureelen".

There is no public access for vehicles to the MDCG and the best place to park is Ikh Khuree Street (P) with the best approach being from the west to avoid a U turn.

There's a supermarket and Café Bene just opposite the car park on Ikh Khuree and plenty of small shops and cafes in the park for coffee and snacks.

Once parked up it is a 15-20 minute walk through the park to the MFCG - it's quickest to keep to the bike track and walk anticlockwise round it...or hire a bike and go clockwise...

The area next to the carpark is fairly developed with cafes and kids' activities and if you make your way south away from the carpark you'll get to the bike track.

If you want to hire a bike – turn left onto the bike track. If you're walking, turn right and follow it as it curves round to the west. After 10 minutes there's a small bridge over a storm drain from which you'll be able to see the water tank and nets of the MFCG...
